RENOWNED FOR HER PSYCHIC ACCURACY AND 'PRECISE TIMING' WITH ALARNAH TOBIN-GRAY

Q Hi Alarnah, My hubby and I have decided to sell our present home and move to another state. This means we will both have to find work. Although it's a bit frightening we feel if we do not make the move now we never will. Can you see if this decision is a good or bad idea? Thanks, Uncertain, Sydney.

A Hello, I am not sure why you asked me to look at this decision regarding the move, as you both are already 100% committed to this move, regardless of the possible outcomes. The best time regarding the sale money-wise seems to be in September, so have the house and garden all spic-and-span to list no later than mid-September. If this time frame is met, November shows success. The people who buy the property stay there, so do not feel sad, as it will be a loved family home. Work issues look good for you more or less from the time of arrival in your chosen state; however, your hubby will have to accept a temporary position for up to six months. After that, he is employed full-time within a very large organisation. The only real problem I see for you both is this six months of uncertainty for your husband, as he seems to think he will walk into a job on arrival (as you do). It comes as quite an ego shock to him that you find work at once and he has to settle for a temporary position if he wants a pay packet. Do be very aware of this factor so it does not damage your relationship. The good news is that you both stay and have a successful life in your adopted state and never regret the move to a cooler climate. Your husband carves out an excellent career. Cheers, Alarnah.

Q Dear Alarnah, My husband and I have been married eight years and we now own our home. We have both worked very hard to gain monetary security. Now that I am twenty-nine years old I would like to start a family. It has always been a dream of mine to have a large family. How many children do you see and when will I conceive? Thanks so much, Lisa G.

A Hi Lisa G, You already have conceived. Congratulations to you both. I only see two births; however, I do see contentment, so it seems that two children will complete your dreams. (And keep you run off your feet!) The children are born within fifteen months of each other and will have a very close bond, perhaps because of being in the same development time span throughout their younger years. Now that you both have gained security through your hard work efforts and by putting other parts of your life on hold, please start to spend time on fun outings and activities, as you will both have to knuckle down soon enough when the baby arrives. A baby is a joyous addition to your home and life; however, time-wise, it is all consuming. Congratulations once again, Alarnah.

Q Dear Alarnah, I am very worried for my daughter, Tina and her husband. They have found themselves in serious financial trouble because of a business deal. It looks like they may lose their home. Can they get out of this bad situation? Will they be able to keep their home? There are three children all under eight years which adds to the pressure, as my daughter feels she cannot spend enough time with them and her patience threshold is not what it used to be. This also upsets her so it has become a vicious cycle which seems to have no end. My husband and I have helped a little with their bills; however, we are not in the financial position to offer a lot of help. We have the grandchildren stay over twice a week to lighten the load for them. This we enjoy and we would gladly have them more often but I am worried this might disrupt their young lives. Do you think we can offer to have the kids more or would my daughter and Ray think we were interfering or being critical of their behavior? Worried sick, W. Aust.

A Hi, I am so sorry your family has been caught up in one of these sham deals. Firstly, the month of November sees an acceptable outcome on closure of the business deal. This is decided through mediation, not the court, which is a good thing for you are all emotionally drained already. Your daughter and son-in-law do not consider you or your husband to be interfering in any area of their life, be it business, children or their marriage. They both respect and appreciate your input. Regarding their home, it seems it would be best if they sold it, as they will make an excellent sale in October. All the joy has been removed and replaced by fear and dread, so the home dream has become a house nightmare. Should they decide to sell, they are able to buy a three bedroom home which although smaller, is filled with laughter and love. If this option is taken, they are resettled by November. If you wish to have the children more often, this will not create an issue either for you or the kids. Perhaps you may like to go to their place every Friday to cook or take a meal over for them to rehear. Set the dining table with "special" tablecloth, and candles, etc., to give them a romantic "It is great to be in love and together" evening that they can look forward to at the end of each week. You and your husband are loved, so stop being concerned about your offers of help. Your offers and suggestions are taken in the spirit they are offered. This New Year will be a time of celebrations for you all. God Bless, Alarnah. ☺
