Walking In The World

Cancer is a cardinal sign in astrology, meaning that you know what your values are, and you honour them. This means that you can provide a steadying hand and reassuring comfort to others around you whose energies are easily scattered.

This spring; however, as the planets spin their way around the solar system, they bring many events your way that ask you to respond more flexibly. I don't mean that your life looks like being an obstacle course, or unpleasant in any way, but I do mean that a greater degree of adaptability will serve you well. This allows you to grow, while still maintaining the inner-steadiness that your friends and loved ones appreciate so much.

Relationships

On September 3 and 4, the sultry Moon winks romantically at the Sun and also links up to the destiny points (or lunar nodes) in your solar chart. This suggests a soul mate... and I never say this lightly. If you are ready, say a prayer and sashay forth in your finest Cancerian gear. Later in the month, more beautiful days for new romances are September 16 and 26.

Around October 1 and 2, you could be instantly attracted to someone dazzling but tongue-tied. Don't worry - if they notice you, they won't forget you, even if you haven't exchanged a word. Slip them your business card or give them some other way to contact you. Next up is an amazing conjunction of Mars and Venus in Scorpio on October 25. For Cancerians, this suggests either an exciting and passionate time, or a confusing one. Rely on your intuition.

On November 10 and 11, there is also the possibility of meeting someone new. But if you are already in a long-term partnership, you're likely to start reviewing its progress around November 16, when a year long cycle between Venus and Jupiter draws to a close in your romance sector. Take your beloved somewhere you can relax and reflect on the past year. Replay the highlights and celebrate how far you've come. If a relationship breaks up around this date, you may have been in a learning situation, rather than with someone who was really compatible. Review the lessons you have learnt, so you don't have to repeat them.

Jupiter has been whipping up emotional dramas but also plenty of natural highs in your love life over the past year. So is it good news or sad news that he is moving out of your romance zone on November 24? That depends on how you've worked with the Jupiter aspect of your personality. Jupiter is considered a positive influence on Cancerians, so I hope he has brought someone gorgeous into your life over the past twelve months or so. After November 24, you may feel an inner shift - a sense of being able to settle down more with your beloved. Your sex life might also settle down a bit, but don't think that means you are less loved.

Home And Family

September 5, 6, 7 and 28 are your best times this month for healing family issues that reach back into the past. It's a good time to reconnect with absent relatives or your parents. You will find others willing to share their feelings. Much relief can come of connecting at this time if you have a little good will.

Your most difficult days in September are around the 16th and the 24th. On the 16th you may find that your personal goals clash with family responsibilities. Assert your right to some independence of spirit. Around September 24, the Sun, Moon, Mercury and Mars link up. Too many cooks in the kitchen? Your delight in so many loved ones around you could be spoilt by fiery ego dramas. Smooth things over with a nurturing Cancer-style feast.

The Full Moon in Aries on October 7 could stir up issues, disagreements and strong emotions. Sit and talk sensibly, and look for win-win solutions. Later this month, on October 22nd, the New Moon suggests it's a great time to make changes. It's also a positive day for signing a real estate contract. The next day, however, someone with an excess of energy might create havoc, so focus his or her energy on a constructive task. Does the garage need a
